Student 'Shopping Center' Helps Learning Processes

The "Flavian Shopping Center" is helping first, second, and third graders at Flavian Elementary School learn their reading, writing, arithmetic, and other subjects. Students in Mrs. Joan Taylor's room have built their own small shopping center, with four "shops"—a grocery store, post office, bank, and library—as part of their studies of the community in which they live. Youngsters get a chance to make practical applications of the studies they pursue in class.

YOUNGSTERS, with Mrs. Taylor's help, designed and built the small center which they now patronize eagerly. With class checks, they can get play money out of the bank and they use this to buy groceries and other items at their market. The market is stocked with cans and boxes the youngsters have brought from home, as well as papier mache vegetables. The Flavian Library is stocked with a number of books that their teacher checked out from the "supermarket of knowledge," the Educational Materials Building. Youngsters go through the regular routine to get books in which they are interested.

THE POST OFFICE was set up after a class visit to the Torrance Post Office. Each youngster has a box and the youngsters are eager to practice writing letters, so they can mail them. All notices to be sent home are put in the youngsters' boxes. School savings are handled through the bank, as well as the paper money with which students budget their various purchases.

Torrance Hi Classes Told Story of Gas

Students in chemistry and physics classes at Torrance High School learned of thermostats and thermocouples in a science presentation at the school last Thursday and Friday. John Petree outlined briefly a history of the development, application and use of natural gas. The students were intrigued by the display of a very small electric magnet operating on electricity produced by a natural gas flame.

STUDENTS in the freshman problems classes heard a presentation entitled, "Facts About Natural Gas" to be given to the classes in the auditorium on Wednesday and Thursday. Richard Wass of the Gas Co. discussed the uses of natural gas, its physical properties, and combustible requirements.

THESE presentations are part of the educational program at Torrance High School. Resource persons from the community and surrounding areas are invited to speak to the students in many areas. The practice of inviting outside speakers is an attempt to bring first hand information to the students to supplement the teaching in the classroom.

Adventists to Hear Report On Per Capita Giving Today

Some 1000 delegates, gathered for a top session of the Seventh-day Adventist church, are being told today that each member of their church in Southern California gave $411 above local church expenses in tithes and offerings during 1959 and 1960. The delegates are attending the 44th Biennial Constituency Meeting of the Southern California Conference of Adventists at White Memorial Adventist Church in Los Angeles throughout the day.

THE SESSION empowers

delegates named by 80 Southland Adventist churches to select all administrative officers of the church, to review all credentials of church workers, to enact necessary church constitutional changes and to conduct all other church business of major import as may be necessary.

Alvin G. Munson, Glendale, secretary-treasurer of the 21,000-member church unit, is revealing at the session this morning that members in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties, the area which comprises the church conference, gave a total of $8,344,540 above local church expenses in the two years period.

"THIS represents a yearly per capita figure of $205.50 which is one of the top per capita church giving figures among all religious groups," Mr. Munson says.

The church leader's report also reveals that membership in the conference rose from 19,639 to 20,650 during the 1959-1960 biennium.

REPORTING to the session on welfare activities of the church's Southland conference, William L. Barclay, Glendale, home missions director, said 122,520 Southland persons were helped in the two-year period through Adventist-directed welfare efforts.

Barclay's report notes that church members gave 340,315 hours of volunteer help to prepare and administer supplies to needy persons in the two-year period. Cash value of the assistance program totaled $1,262,361 which included 35,236 food baskets given and 383,992 articles of clothing distributed.

SOUTHLAND Adventist religious book salesmen delivered $581,772 worth of books during the two-year period according to a report to the session by Milton T. Johnson, Glendale, publishing director of the Southern California Conference.

According to Ellsworth S. Reile, Glendale, Southland youth activities director of Adventists, youth of the church distributed 504,180 pieces of religious literature during the two year period and gave 8772 Bible readings or gospel meetings.

CLARENCE C. Kott, Glendale, Adventist Sabbath school

director, is telling the delegates that Southland Adventists gave $751,294 through Sabbath schools to support Adventist foreign missions during 1959 and 1960. During the two-year period 75,000 Adventist-sponsored vacation Bible schools attended by 8509 children were held in the three Southland counties comprising the church's Southern California unit.

Late this afternoon delegates are expected to consider election of all administrative officers of the church conference as well as an executive committee composed of both clergy and laymen.
